

PERSONALITY, SOUL, SPIRIT, and the Transformation of Human Consciousness
by Donna D’Ingillo

PREFACE

Several major influences in my life have directed me onto the path of being a healer. I became aware of the first when I was around age eight, while viewing pictures in magazines of starving people and the devastation of war. This triggered in me a strong urge to help people overcome. When I found The Urantia Book at age twenty-one in 1975 and read the sections about the mind, I also was stimulated to learn more about its functions, especially as those relate to Mother Spirit.

Furthermore, reading the Jesus Papers touched me so deeply that I developed a passionate desire awakened in me to do what He did as a human—to develop myself to the height of human achievement and hopefully to achieve Adjuster Fusion during my lifetime. After I finished reading the Papers for the first time, I said to myself, “I want to do that; I want to achieve what you did, Father.”

Fast forward to the mid-1990s, when I had a profound spiritual experience while sitting at my desk at work. A flash of insight compressed a lot of information into the small space of only a few seconds. For the first time, I saw our world and its relationship to the universe. I was shown that everything about how our planet was functioning ran counter to the divine plans of the universe and that it was crucial for the world to get back on the divine plan. As compelling as this insight was, it was nothing compared with the feeling the insight conveyed in my body—one of utter, pristine clarity that was the best feeling I had ever experienced. There was a sense of purity and cleanliness, and when the feeling was gone, there was nothing I could do to recreate it. I now believe that this was a flash from my Father Fragment to get my attention when I was just beginning to explore the path of healing.

These experiences all combined to solidify a deep yearning to help people heal, and over the course of the next twenty-five years, I applied myself diligently to heal my own emotional wounds and began to assist people in their own healing. I received much spiritual insight and help to understand the workings of the human mind and how the Lucifer Rebellion perverted our evolution. All along the way I developed a deep intimacy with Michael as my Divine Father and Mother Spirit as my Divine Mother, who revealed much to my mind and heart and helped me experience their deep, abiding love. It was one of the biggest joys of my life to perceive their love for me, and I made a decision to devote my life in service to help others find that love within.

The following essay is offered with love to Urantia colleagues who may be interested to learn how our Parents are healing this world of the rebellion effects.

INTRODUCTION TO MY LIFE'S WORK

The Paradise Father is a multidimensional Creator. Working alone or in concert with the other members of the Divine Trinity, He creates many levels of universe reality in order for His divine plans to manifest throughout the grand universe. We are a part of that multidimensionality, being composed of body, spirit, soul, personality, and mind. It is, of course, difficult to convey multidimensional realities, but in this essay I will try to craft a picture of what I have learned about these dimensions over the course of more than twenty-five years of work in a healing ministry based on the Urantia Revelation. Many celestial personalities, especially Christ Michael and Mother Spirit, are eager to collaborate with us and infuse us with their divine energies to heal us personally and collectively from the influence of the Lucifer Rebellion and the Adamic Default. Among many other adverse influences, those two seminal events brought distortion and confusion into our minds and bodies. The elimination of these effects is fundamental for Urantia to return to its original plan of evolution and someday achieve the status of Light and Life.

My understanding as reported in this essay has been gleaned through conducting several thousand one-on-one healing sessions over the years with my clients. Along the way, I took notes during sessions and collected feedback from many of these individuals based on their experiences in the sessions as well as changes they felt afterwards. In many cases, I have observed patterns of healing through working with these same individuals over several years.

From time to time, I was guided to look at independent research being conducted in the fields of genetics, consciousness studies, and other related areas. Cutting-edge scientific research suggests that human behavior and health are highly influenced by the unconscious influences within the mind and DNA. I came to believe that much of what I was increasingly perceiving during sessions was also being studied from a different perspective. I found many corollaries between the scientific viewpoint and the spiritual domain that I was guided to explore. The following is an attempt to share my understanding of this vast arena of our existence.

THE DESIGN

We exist within the personality circuit (PC) of the Paradise Father, according to The Urantia Book. Within His being is an original idea for each human person who comes into existence. He confers Personality as a unique substance upon each person, because He desires each of us to express a unique purpose within the unfolding of His vast creative design. Thus comes into existence what might be called the original intention (OI)—the reason we were created within the heart of the Father's love. This OI represents our unique personality. It operates in us through the PC as substance of the Paradise Father. Our personalities contain structure consisting of sacred geometric designs that take the form of a multidimensional kaleidoscopic image. This image is a pattern—the unique and unchanging pattern of our personality—designed to be expressed through our thoughts, feelings, and actions over the long course of the ascension journey. This pattern contains the potentials for actualizing the Father's objectives for our lives.

Within the OI pattern are subpatterns containing information for the ongoing expression of individual personality. Information is multi-dimensional, appearing as color, shape, and language—all vibrations teeming with life energies designed to be communicated to the human mind-body energy system. The subpattern information is conveyed into the adjutant mind spirits, the chakra system, the meridian system, and into the physical body. This communication functions via a vast interlacing of circuitry, ranging from the high-frequency spiritual level down to the density of corporeal matter.

The master pattern as well as the subpatterns within the OI are designed to sponsor an individual's unique expression as the person becomes self-aware, evolving in this life and in the afterlife. The OI operates through the mind and through the influences in our genetics expressed in our bodies—that which is given to us as a vehicle in which to manifest our personalities in material reality.

A second major factor is also at play. The Father fragment contains the ideal life plan, as we are told in The Urantia Book (110.2.1). If the person is cooperative, their God fragment will shepherd its human ward to his/her highest personality expression to evolve the soul. The function of the Father fragment is to convey the information embedded within the personality patterns into the level of waking human awareness (the conscious thinking and feeling components) in order to stimulate decision-making leading to action. Information gleaned within the conscious mind helps the individual to cooperate with his/her divine life plan, culminating in the twin goals of reaching the divine embrace in Paradise and successfully engaging in the eternity adventure in service.

This process begins when a human evolutionary ascender is gifted with the requisite circuitry to equip the personality expression to develop along the lines of the unique divine life plan. The seven adjutant mind spirits (AMS) comprise what might be considered as the software for the material form, with the brain as the hard drive that processes information. The memory component of mind stores information, which we can recall. The AMS are designed to evolve according to the divine plan and to foster the reception of the Father fragment. The intention is that all constituent parts and components of the human being will function distinctly yet unified in purpose—that is, to foster personality expression through soul development. (See also The Human System of Consciousness.)

Communication exists between AMS and the physical body system via the system of energy distribution circuits commonly known as the chakras. They exist as part of the mindal system, which is designed to foster communication between the spiritual and physical levels of life. Each chakra is connected into one of the seven AMS (the Spirit of Intuition into the root chakra, for example), translating the spirit sparks throughout its various channels to communicate into other levels of the human energy system.

Chakras provide communication pathways between the adjutants, translating the information between the higher frequencies of spirit energy and the circuits of the meridians and the Central Nervous System (CNS). The CNS communicates to the brain and sends bio-electrical-chemical information from the brain throughout the body, including into our DNA.

The chakras exist in the subtle components of the human energy system which is commonly referred to as the energy field or “aura.” They appear as funnel-shaped energy distributors with the larger opening of the funnel extending out of the body into a person’s energy field in the front and back of an individual. The narrow portion of the chakra is connected to the subtle-energy system within the core of the body.

Chakras respond to energies existing within the fields of other people and within the thought/emotional forms contained within our planet’s collective body information. They receive information from their outer opening that communicates emotional and mental energy to the body. They are designed to communicate information from inner relationship to the AMS to the human thought and feeling centers. As well, they capture, contain, and disseminate mental and emotional energy into the subtle energy centers of the body from the external environment. Their activities are fundamental to the healing process, which is detailed further in the section describing the healing process. (This is only a partial description of the interplay between the AMS, chakras and body; the complexity of these interactions is too great to articulate for the purposes of this essay.)

Thus, when the components within the mind operate according to the divine design, greater Spirit receptivity can be gleaned within the mind. Concomitantly, the body responds to the positive workings of the mind to support greater physical health and wholeness.

I believe that the Father fragment and the individual personality constantly communicate with each other beyond our conscious awareness. This helps the individual perceive the inner urges of the Father to express His objectives for soul development via the above-mentioned process. Contained within the personality patterns are the objectives of Father-expression for successive stages of development. The Father fragment knows these objectives and assists the individual to become aware of His urgings so that the objectives may manifest at each stage of the long ascension career. This activity is particularly intense during the material-life phase because the soul is in its first stages of development, and even more so because the human energy system does not have enough of the Adamic DNA to function as originally intended.

Various other impediments interfere with this organic process. In addition to the paucity of Adamic DNA, the planetary culture that developed as a result of the rebellion sophistries created artificial inner and outer environments that shaped evolution according to the Luciferic agenda. This severely restricted and distorted the communication system of the AMS and other components of the human energy system so that it could not function normally according to the divine plan for human-soul development. (See The Urantia Book; 65:7.3–4)

Thus, we live in a planetary environment that deviates from the divine plan. This directly impacts both the inner environment of our DNA and the outer environment that our chakras “see” of our material culture that is impacting their function. This comes into play early in life as the growing child develops a self-concept based upon environmental factors of the home life and the biological influences from both parents.

THE SELF-CONCEPT

I have come to understand that the self-concept is the human’s attempt to craft an image based upon one’s emotional and mental reactions to inner and outer environments. From this perspective, what is commonly called “ego” is simply the individual’s ideation of self carved from life experiences starting in the womb and developing through the home life and various cultural influences, as well as from biological and ancestral influences. This self-concept usually greatly differs from the individual's personality of the Father's ideation of who that individual truly is.

The self-concept operates through the system of the mind-body. This system might be considered a giant recording device wherein memories accumulate through life experiences of how the individual perceives him/herself. Memories are the arena where life information is collected and stored, developing into patterns of feeling and thinking that color one's perception of life.

The memory patterns interplay at all levels of the mind-body energy system. The experiential memories of the past need to be perceived with divine insight that more human will alignment to Father's will may occur. The memory interactions comprise the mechanics of how we evolve our consciousness to higher levels. Fundamental to understanding human consciousness is an ongoing journey to perceive the interplay of the AMS, chakra system, the brain, CNS, and DNA. Synergistic relationships exist between all of these levels of physical and subtle energies; however, some of the detail is beyond my internal visual scope. This does not interfere with my role as a healer because our Parents know how each child perceives him- or herself and is able to heal any emotional memory pattern that is causing dysfunction or distress, no matter how deeply it is rooted.

The healing process transforms the self-concept so that it better mirrors the personality and provides a more appropriate, higher perspective of one's life experiences. One function is to help associated painful memories be gleaned from the higher perspective so they become of part of an individual's soul. Healing occurs via human consciousness being upstepped from the deeply entrenched influences of the rebellion influence riddled through the planet's constructs of mind. Divine Parents' gift to us actually instills an inner environment of their love that we feel the affection and validation we require for growing strong and noble characters, much of which is missing in human life.

THE REBELLION INTERFERENCE IN OUR MIND-BODY SYSTEMS

In their attempts to deviate from the divine plan, the rebels created an alternative system in which they evolved according to their own desires. Their agenda began to spawn destructive influences to maintain their control and domination of the planet. This created a planetary environment of betrayal, causing separation from God and fostering disharmony and disunity in human relationships. The archrebels' contention that there was no Creator Father in Paradise put them in the place of deity as the focus of worship, and they used coercive means to control human ability to grow spiritually.

Thus, there now exists within the planet's mindal system a complex memory of adherence to the rebellion. The mental and emotional by-products of this mindset interfered with the chakras' capacity to receive the divine information necessary for normal evolutionary development. This influence still exists to adversely impact human memory, albeit mostly at unconscious levels. The good news is that now the rebellion "fog" is lifting in the mind-memory circuits of the planet that human mind may have more bandwidth to perceive the leadings of Spirit.

Rebellion interference functions at a subtle level, and there are also biological repercussions from the rebellion that impact our DNA. The interplay between the chakras and DNA is a vast area of exploration as it relates to memory and how that influences human thought, feeling, and behavior. During healing sessions, I have observed what looks like deviant language within the chakras as subtle energy and in the DNA, causing our divinely designed evolution to diverge from its intended path.

RECOGNIZING THE INNER REBELLION INTERFERENCE

Perceived during sessions is an overlay that looks like a dark field containing information interfering with positive healthy mental and emotional processing. These dark energies form various types of blocks within individuals' mind-body systems. The nature and form of these blocks depend upon the inner perception of the human thought and emotional environment and the memory patterns. The dark fields hide the distorted language encoding from the rebellion, such as "I am unworthy of love." Healing requires superhuman involvement to fully outwork since humanity did not start the rebellion. Various levels of help from our Divine Parents and their helpers are necessary to restructure the mind-memory patterns so they are more liberated to attune to the leadings of the Spirit Within.

The DNA component of memory is also involved to outwork the rebellion legacy. The field of epigenetics is the study of how inheritance is expressed through both biological and environmental influences. Research in this field has identified that memories from the experiences of individuals in previous generations in one's genetic line—perhaps especially traumatic memories of abuse, warfare, poverty, and other adversities—are encoded upon the epigene component of DNA and carried forth from generation to generation. This influences behavior in the current generation, especially at unconscious levels, creating both mental and emotional patterns detrimental to the evolutionary process for achieving soul evolution and higher states of consciousness.

During sessions, I observed information encoded into the chakras and DNA that impacted its originally designed expression over the course of thousands of years of human evolution. For example, in my mind's eye, dark energy bodies that contained language such as "perversion of human consciousness" or "destroyer of human happiness" would appear. While this may not be actual information stored in the gene, what I observed could have been a representation of the memory designed to perpetuate the rebellion agenda, and it appeared as a focal point while correction was being conducted.

This detrimental effect in our chakras and DNA was a conscious effort by Caligastia and his followers. It had the effect of interfering with our natural inheritance of the Father's presence within via the PC. Lucifer's pronouncement that there was no Creator Father, combined with Caligastia's elevation of himself as "God of Urantia," created spiritual belief systems of false deities. Over time the beliefs in this false god were used to engender fear in the evolving human race due to the punitive judgmental nature depicted as the God concept. Early man's fear of nature and lack of understanding also played directly into the rebels' way of perverting and perpetuating the true nature of deity.

During sessions, many people report that they intellectually know God loves them, but they cannot feel His love within. They feel unworthy. This sense of unworthiness is at the core of destructive behaviors and can sometimes lead to addictive actions. Unworthiness can appear as sabotaging behaviors especially when people know they are doing wrongful things but do not feel they have any control over them.

I believe that much of this sense of unworthiness comes from false impressions of deity existing as cultural and or religious belief systems. This can take the form of "fear of God," which has its roots in the rebellion, which projected the idea of a punishing, judgmental deity. In sessions, individual's feelings of unworthiness are explored and the unconscious beliefs impeding the person from identifying with the personality as beloved by God and important to the overall divine plan of life are revealed.

This influence of disconnection from Father that fosters unworthiness in our mind-body system of memory is planet-wide and threaded through many religious traditions, also encourages divisiveness in our interactions with one another. This disharmonious influence makes it difficult to perceive the harmony contained with the Father's personality that builds the brotherhood of humanity. It continues to strengthen the human tendency to "lord it over" our brothers and sisters and keep us locked into our own opinions and judgments instead of allowing another person's perspective to add to our knowledge base.

As stated above, over time, this mindset led to behaviors that became memories, which in turn were encoded into the DNA as well as providing a cultural environment that our chakras perceived as negative energy. This interfered in the operation of the AMS, creating a mask within our energy systems. Although the rebels could not destroy our innate connection to the Father via the PC, they did their best to ensure ongoing loyalty to their plans. This was primarily achieved through the development of the Nodites, that race that signed on to the rebellion agenda. In violation of the divine plan, their behaviors created patterns in the genome that have shaped the evolution of our world. These Luciferic influences are now threaded throughout our planetary constructs of mind that are contained within the chakras and human DNA, especially in certain races that received more of the Nodite DNA. While no pure Nodites exist today, their DNA continues to unconsciously support behavior patterns that perpetuate adherence to the deviant plans of the rebels.

Much of the rebellion coding would have been outworked by this time in our planetary evolution had our Adamic pair succeeded in their mission. This essay is not designed to articulate the full scope of what the rebels did to perpetuate their plans and pervert our beings, but I can share further perceptions about this in a future article.

In sum, there is interference within the mind-body system acting as a subtle influence to maintain the rebellion agenda. The memory interplay between the DNA, the AMS, the chakra system, and the physical body was originally designed so that each could perform its separate but synergistic function to evolve according to the original divine design. Plans formulated by Michael and those celestial personalities in charge of our planet are now underway to rehabilitate our consciousness so it operates in an upstepped manner to foster our positive evolution. By removing the Luciferic interference and repatterning and reparenting us in their love, Michael and Mother are fostering our evolution to higher states of consciousness that this world may one day attain Light and Life.

DIVINE HELP TO HEAL OUR PAINFUL PAST

The compensatory healing measures developed by our Divine Parents now include what I was guided to call Generational Healing.” This is a process of imprinting, within the body and its subtle energies and energy field, divine patterns of the qualities of our Spirit Parents into the memory patterns of one’s own experiences and those of past generations. Spiritual circuits are infused to repattern various components of the memory and other energies that caused interference throughout a person’s overall system, improving circuitry communication at the various levels of mind-body function. This enables an enhanced receptivity to the Father Fragment and better coordination with the OI. Correction reaches into the depths of the human system as our Parents see what is out of alignment and provide their specific divine infusions needed by each individual to correct these misaligned aspects of our being. Over time, as the imprinting process continues, the individual is better able to perceive their connection with, and the affection of, the Paradise Father.

The effect of these infusions is to support our recognition of the natural faith dynamic that exists between Divine Parents and human child. Yielding to the Father's love confers a type of physical relaxation and emotional assurance that reinforce our innate connection to the Father as a son or daughter. This trust is fundamental for the individual to cooperate in the organic process of becoming Father-like.

Our Divine Parents are contactable and desire intimate relationships with their children. Over the course of the past twenty-five years, I have spent much stillness time developing my own relationship with them and have gleaned much from them about how they function in our beings as loving Spirit Parents. I experienced how they imparted their love upon my own memory patterns, helping me see the generational influences of my ancestors as well as the particular rebellion influences that have impacted my own self-concept.

My own experiences with our Parents as well as during healing sessions for others offered me a template to observe their ministry in our beings. One of the first endowments they share with us is their trustworthiness to imprint upon memories, whether personal or generational, that contain negative feelings of betrayal, abandonment, or anger. Michael and Mother convey their love in different ways, albeit their combined essences yield a complete circuit for the self-concept and memory patterns to open to their loving mercy.

It appears that Mother embraces emotions contained within the memory pattern that need to be transformed at the same time that Michael imprints His love and validation upon the individual's self-concept. This synergistic action represents the divine patterns of each Parent—which might be considered the perfect masculine and feminine traits necessary for a person to become balanced. Our Parents' infusions of safety, validation, and compassion provide the environment for the subtle energies of the mindal system to re-form and the self-concept to identify more with the personality.

From Michael we imprint upon the divine qualities of kindness, compassion, tolerance, patience, and other such noble and lovely traits that support our validation as a child of God. From Mother we receive Her embrace as the safe environment in which to grow and prosper—a representation of the safety and support of the universe for the soul to thrive. Jesus expressed this dynamic in his discourse with John Mark on one of the last days of His earthly life. (See The Urantia Book: 171.2.5-6)

I believe it is their desire for all of the children of the Satania rebellion worlds to be healed of the disastrous effects of the Luciferic agenda. That they provide us with this level of imprinting upon their divine beings is a testament to their overarching love that can erase all evil and sin and allow a person to regain his and her rightful dignity as a son and daughter of God. They are returning to us our divine inheritance that the rebels tried to strip from us, and to help each individual to tap into his or her personality in order to complete the objectives of the earth life and assist in planetary transformation.

It has been the biggest joy of my life to observe how they function in our beings during healing sessions to heal the past, and to receive feedback from individuals as to how their lives have improved from developing their own relationships with our wonderful Parents.

DIVINE PARENTAL IMPRINTING DURING SESSIONS

Note: This process is described in general terms. The complexity of what occurs at all levels is not possible to describe in this essay. Doing justice to this subject would require much more detail, and even then, language cannot capture the full sense of the experience for both myself and my clients.)

I offer a prayer of intention to our Divine Parents, who know each individual and how his or her being is configured. Then the imprinting begins to interact with the interference contained within the memory patterns of the chakras and DNA. This interference acts as a mighty resistor within the unconscious levels of the mind-body connection, yet the resistance does give way to the divine sparks of light of spiritual energy. Spirit—that is, the divine patterns of our Divine Parents—is the necessary ingredient that corrects the interference and enables the reconstruction of the circuits. This creates a better flow internally of information from the Father Fragment and then manifests externally as the personality expresses the fruits of the spirit through one's behavior.

Both conscious and unconscious memory patterns stored at the various levels of our mind-body system are revealed during healing sessions. The Indwelling Spirit always knows what a person is ready to transform. With that in mind, our Parents open various pathways for repatterning in their parental essences. I have observed infusions containing a variety symbols and codes of a spiritual language imprinting upon the various memories, seemingly imprinting upon the DNA itself to rescript or rewrite it. Some of these symbols look like letters in the Hebrew language.

At the DNA level, it appears that when the DNA strand is opened in divine love, spots of darkness are revealed that signify gaps in the communication of information. An energetic “charge” of Spirit moves into this gap, catalyzing an opening that releases energy. What I see in my spirit vision is the release of dark energy that streams up to Mother. Once the negative energetic residue clears, the erroneous information within the strand is revealed, followed by the imprinting of divine patterns by our Parents: First, the incorrect coding spirals out clockwise as it lifts off the DNA strand, returning to Mother for Her purposes. Then the correct information spirals in, in a counter-clockwise direction. This occurs over and over until correction of the subtle interactions between the DNA and chakras has gone as far it can go at that time. Much can be corrected during a single session, but it is a longer process to fully repattern the memory experience so that it further aligns with the information conveyed via the Father Fragment.

At the same time as the DNA repatterning, the chakras are cleared of the negative energetic influence that interferes with their optimal function. There appear to be memories also stored in the energy field around the chakras which relate to the DNA component, but the mechanics of their interaction are still beyond my internal vision. However, I do perceive that the chakras are masked with dark energies such as anger, confusion, disrespect, and other such spirit toxins. Our Mother's actions in the chakras dispel the negative charge contained with the emotional memory component through Her infusions of love, safety, security, and compassion. Her endowments through the Holy Spirit upstep the emotional memory with the spiritual quality necessary for the individual to begin to feel safe and supported while the corrections are being made simultaneously and synergistically by both Parents.

Because correction is so vast and comprehensive, it requires overarching divine love to discharge the emotional energy within the memory patterns contained within the chakras and DNA that form habits of feeling and thinking. Forgiveness on the part of the person being healed plays a vital role here because it creates an opening to recognize God's perspective if we are both willing and sincere. This higher vantage point is fundamental for perceiving the painful memory from the Father's perspective. The memory will still exist; however, the emotional charge of pain contained within the memory will be altered. This allows the Indwelling Spirit to convey the Father's love and compassion, which reshapes the negative experience and places it in the proper universe context.

This enhancement of mental objectivity and inner perception provides a wider and deeper lens for translating the experience from painful and destructive to peaceful and spiritually aligned. The memory obtains, in a sense, the spiritual energy necessary that provides the gravity to move the experience into the growing soul.

Michael shares His divine qualities to communicate to the self-concept; at the same time, Mother expands the environment of the chakras so that the memory can communicate to the self-concept as it alters through Michael's infusions of love. While the spiritual energies are imprinting from both Parents, they are also vibrationally downstepped to imprint upon the denser or lower frequencies of the subtle energy system and into the physical body. Through various pathways, healing energies translate information into the central nervous system, which conveys signals to the brain to release the various biochemical responses to trigger a physical healing response where it is needed.

The many new energies re-encoding the negative memories in the chakras and DNA integrates with a person's current understanding, upstepping their past and ancestral experiences with the divine information needed to motivate future actions in concert with divine will. This process is repeated as many times as necessary until it becomes more natural to respond according to the Father's will. Correction occurs at various levels to function comprehensively, thus promoting optimal healing. This is similar to a tuning fork striking a signal note that the various octaves of energy may come into harmony.

As noted earlier, the chakras are connected to the energy field (or aura) of the human mind-body system. This field captures information perceived from one's outer environment, such as interactions with others. Hurtful interactions with people contribute to energy blocks in the field that interfere with the optimal function of the chakras. They cannot distribute the spiritual energies necessary for other parts of the mind body system to function as designed by Spirit. The aura becomes increasingly clear or “light” when the distortions contained within the chakra environment are healed and/or transformed by divine love from our Parents. The field then becomes more attractive or magnetic and a person is perceived by others as “safe” to be around.

During healing sessions, angels contribute by working in the field to help defuse the charge of negative thought forms and emotional energy emitted into the field from inner disturbances. The angels radiate infusions of harmonic frequencies to break up the energetic distortions in the aura, aiding the chakras and DNA also in recalibrating according to the spiritual frequencies infused by Michael and Mother. This completes the healing circuit so the energy that flows from inside the body and outside in the field communicates freely in alignment with spiritual energy.

This outer field also allows for an expansive expression of the soul as a discrete “body” to emerge, which is also a subtle body. The human energy system has been devised for flexibility—the ability to grow the soul within the inner container of the human mindal system in conjunction with personality expression conforming to the Father’s will. The soul emits a signal to radiate outwardly into the auric field; this signal can be perceived by others as a spiritual fragrance or as feelings of trustworthiness and safety, as we have discussed. The soul-body operating in the outer energy field continues to develop until the habit of conforming to divine will becomes so dominant that the connections between the Spirit, soul, and personality become so interdependent that the three function virtually as one.

Once the inner (inside the body) and outer (the energy field or aura) environments have been more or less cleansed of interference, the stage is set for greater personality expression in daily life. The individual's personality is able to communicate to the self-concept the objectives contained within the OI that are ready to be turned from potential to actual in material reality. The energy system appears to contain more light and space for both the Father Fragment and OI to shed insight upon the conscious mind to consider what is most beneficial to soul growth.

Faith leads the way as the individual begins to intuit better ways to engage with life and feels an inner urging to respond according to divine leadings. The individual tests the waters by observing how well he/she is able to act in a loving and positive manner. If these continue to be expressed, then the healing has taken good root. This manner of living allows for soul growth, at the same time contributing to the growing mind of the Planetary Supreme—part of the overall Supreme Being.

TWO EXAMPLES OF HEALING SESSIONS

In both of these summary examples, the individuals had a particular emotional habit that was specifically addressed and healed by our Parents. The first example focuses on generational healing. The second example centers on the individual's own experience.

Individual A was troubled by feelings of lack of self-worth and anger. During the sessions, it was revealed that the patterns of these emotions were tied to imprinting from her ancestral and cultural patterns of her native country. Some of the memories were linked to how women had been devalued in her culture by social and religious traditions, especially from the Middle Ages when, at times, “wise women” were burned at the stake. There were strong imprints from the brutality of her culture, which fueled her anger. Mother Spirit helped her release the anger through Her infusions of love and compassion. Over time she began to feel her innate self worth and was able to move beyond the cultural imprinting to find her joy and passion in life. She has now embarked upon a career as a healer and has keen motivation to help others through natural healing modalities.

Individual B came for help with feelings of fear of nature (particularly of bees) and trouble staying grounded in her body and to Mother Earth. The root cause was identified as fear from her human mother that B had imprinted upon due to her own mother's fears for her daughter's safety and cleanliness. As these fears were drawn out, Mother Spirit came into the memory pattern to imprint Her safety upon the thread of memories tied to the fear imprint. Mother provided the correct energetic language sequence on the various components of the memory thread, releasing the negative emotional charge. Now B is very connected to the earth plane, is grounded into her body and has a new-found love and respect for the natural world. To her delight, she now considers them her friends.

There are just two brief examples of the complexity and correction that occurs during the repatterning and reparenting by our Parents. I have found that it is not so important to know all of the correction that occurs, but rather to trust that our Spirit Mom and Dad know us better than we know ourselves and are able to provide the correct parenting we need to develop and express our Father-bestowed personality gifts.

Post-session, many people express that they feel lighter or as if something in them has shifted or lifted off them. Integration of the new energies and patterns takes time, with the majority being integrated during the first 24 to 72 hours. This period of integration also supports the individual to observe his or her own behavior to see if it has changed and improved.

Corrections of these types, I believe, are similar to a near-death review of memories and the correction that occurs on Manshonias 1 and 2. My experience has shown me that this process occurs here on Urantia when we are ready to see beyond the veil of interference and trust in God's love to heal the distortion.

CONCLUSION

The people of our world are being encouraged by various spiritual forces and personalities to undertake the conscious development of the soul. As the spiritual pressure increases and bears upon the human heart, the impetus to undertake this journey becomes more focalized within. The increased and enhanced circuitry of the planet is now receiving morontia mota, which upsteps our mind circuits to receive higher ideals and ideas of the universe realms. It is assisting us in our planetary constructs of consciousness to perceive higher truths of reality as well as to imprint the spiritual value of goodness for our moral development.

As this is a decimal planet, our Parents are experimenting with a number of new techniques never done before in Nebadon (and possibly in conjunction with information from other universes on how to correct rebellion planets). I feel that I have been a part of this experiment and I know some of the individuals for whom I have facilitated session have been part of this as well.

This enhancement of our beings improves our ability to focus more on our spiritual lives. The inner environments of stillness, prayer, communication, and communion set the stage for reception of divine will and disclose a greater degree of faith in the inner life predicated upon feelings of deep affection, safety and security in one's sense of self and the inner assurance of participation in the great adventure of life.

We are all connected via all of the planetary circuits of mind. At the collective level, cultural beliefs, mores, and traditions that comprise the planet's constructs of consciousness are also receiving massive infusions of truth and goodness that can supersede the distortions of the rebellion and foster inner awakening. This vast circuitry repair occurring at inner, outer, personal, and collective levels is being offered to us as a compensatory gift to liberate us from the rebellion and to get us back on track with the divine plans of evolution, both personal and planetary. As spiritual infusions continue to impact the planet's system of consciousness via many celestial helpers, including the Planetary Seraphic Corps, more individuals will begin to sense an inner awakening and be prompted to seek a higher way. Our Parents are helping us through their infusions of mercy so that each of their children may make the monumental decision to recognize our responsibility to develop our cosmic consciousness while we are here on the planet. But that is up to us—the choice of whether to accept the healing that is being offered to every one of us is ours.
